COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

FOREWORD.

Greetings: In assuming the editorial management of the St. Helens Mist, we realize right at the start that we have considerable of a job on our hands. During the management of Mr. Coan, the readers of the Mist have been enjoying one of the best country weeklies in the state. If we measure up to his efforts, we will be satisfied. While we have been a resident of Oregon for nearly a quarter of a century, this city and this part of the state is new to us. In giving all the news we are therefore handicapped to a certain extent, and we crave the indulgence of our readers until we can take you by the hand and call your name.

Promises are like a string of adjectives and unless backed up by action, are of no value. We have an ambition to get out the best local paper possible, and if we fail, it will not be on account of effort.

St. Helens is the best little town in Oregon today. We are sure of this, and what is more pleasing to a newcomer is, that every person we have met in this city, says so. If there is a single knocker within the corporate limits, we have not found him, and what is more, we don't want to.

In coming here to look over the field, we came by auto from Portland. In entering the city we were greeted by "Welcome to St. Helens." We were a stranger and here was a great big sign to give us welcome. We felt so good over it that we shook hands with ourself. In leaving the city here was the reverse side of the arch reading, "Good Bye—Call Again." We accepted that advice and are now a resident of St. Helens. That arch of welcome was a happy thought, as the traveler on the Columbia highway will remember St. Helens when other places are forgotten.

It seems that the editorial management of the Mist has been somewhat varied during the past few years. No doubt the retirement was for good and sufficient reasons, as they are now engaged in vocations more lucrative and less strenuous, and are clipping their bonds at will. The present editor is a "stayer," and will become a fixture. We were engaged in the newspaper business in Junction City in Lane county for twenty-three years, and therefore have the right to claim the distinction of being a stayer.

While we will eschew politics for the present, we are a republican of the standard, high protective type withoutisms or frills. We believe that the majority should rule and yield to the will of the people, and that is why we accept the present national administration and pay our war tax in time of peace without murmur.

We want every family in Columbia county to read the Mist and later on an effort will be made to secure this end. This paper is published for the people now on earth—dead men don't read. It will be our aim to make it a welcome visitor to every household, and with these few words we greet you.

S. L. MOORHEAD.

FOREIGNERS, TAKE NOTICE.

Next spring there will be important primary elections in every county in Oregon, and the following information for foreign-born residents is being given out by county clerks.

Any person of foreign birth, desiring to make application for final papers, must do so on or before November 3th, 1915, in order to become a citizen so that he may vote at the primaries held in May of next year. The law has been changed so that a person of foreign birth, who has not become a citizen by parentage, must have his final papers before registering to vote. The new registration system will begin on January 3rd of next year, and all naturalized citizens will be required to present their second papers or certificates of citizenship when making application to register.

If you have any acquaintances who are desirous of taking out their final papers, you should inform them that the time is short for making such application, if they desire to vote in the primaries held in May of next year.

TRIUMPH FOR OREGON.

The work of the horticulturists of O. A. C. at the sessions of the American Pomological Society, recently held at Berkeley, has been called a triumph for Oregon, by the Oregonian's special representative. Professor Lewis, head of the department, presented a carefully prepared symposium on problems steadily faced by horticulturists and how they are being worked out in Oregon. Professor Gardner's subject was pruning, P. C. Reimer's, pears, and Professor Allen's, orchard irrigation. The exposition of the Oregon men is said to have captured the meeting.

And now this day comes Geo. C. Brownell of Oregon City, and says the prohibition law as enacted by the legislature is an insult to the people. He says the people voted for absolute prohibition but by the provisions of the state law, the family saloon is created. The provisions in the state act permitting the purchase of two quarts of booze or twenty-four quarts of beer was the result of a stormy and continued conference held by the legislative committee and the anti-saloon league. We are inclined to agree with the Oregon City Courier that the "drys" were asleep at the switch.

When you see some one doing good work say so and say it so that some one will hear it. Don't be afraid that it will produce the big head; that it will upset the judgment; that it will be taken for flattery; that it will be misunderstood. If you sincerely believe that good work has been done there will be none of these dangers in saying so. Probably no one thing in the world's history has contributed more to final success, maybe after years of more downs than ups, than the helpful word casually uttered by some one who admired the untiring zeal and pertinacity that preceded final success.

SPARE OUR BLUSHES.

S. L. Moorhead, founder of the Junction City Times and of state wide reputation, left yesterday for St. Helens, where he will assume the editorial and business management of the St. Helens Mist. Like most newspaper men, Mr. Moorhead could not forget the smell of printer's ink. The many friends he made during his active career of twenty-three years in this city join in extending Mr. Moorhead best wishes for success in his new field. He and his family will be greatly missed in Junction.

Mr. Moorhead established the Times in 1891, and continued in charge of the paper until May of last year. Throughout this period he proved himself a good booster, always at the front in any movement that promised to benefit Junction City. He served the town in the capacity of city recorder, councilman, mayor and school director. He was a prominent factor in securing the establishment of the Punkin Show (fair) and served as vice president and president of the Punkin Show association ever since its origin.

Mr. Moorhead is also well known throughout the state, as he was chief clerk in the Oregon state senate for ten years, and called the roll on the election of the last three United States senators chosen by the legislature.—Junction City Times.

IXTLIXOCHITL.

Now that attention is turned toward Mexico, it is meet that the historian should say a kind word in memory of the boy scrapper of 1516, gentle Ixtlixochitl, otherwise known as Pied-Type. Born in 1500, not far from the village of Ixtapalapa, in full sight of the massive mountain of Ixtaccihuatl, a descendant of the great chief Ixcohuatl, this young man was always a friend of the white man. As he said to Cortes, when he first saw him on Mexican soil, "I'm with you. I will aid you. Any time you want part of my name to die a saw with you can have it."

It was this touching fidelity to the white race that has made the name of Ixtlixochitl a household word throughout Mexico. It is the name the infant boys in the cradle and the old man gasps as he totters to the grave. It is the name the strong man uses to grind his corn and the woman opens the can of succulent tomatoes with. It is the word that inspires the national poet when he bursts into that burning rhapsody entitled "Ixtlixochitl on Ixtaccihuatl." But let the poet speak:

"On Ixtaccihuatl Ixtlixochitl stood
Below him Ixtaccihuatl lay,
And Ixtlixochitl and Ixtaccihuatl
Observed the break of day.

"From Zacapaxtla to Cosamaloapan
His troops victorious were,
But did he think of Cuatrecasas?
Ah, no! He thought of her!

"In Hidalgothlan men might wait,
Ixtlixochitl—where was he?
On Ixtaccihuatl near Popocatepetl
He stood and thought of she.

"In Tlaximilahuaca, he thought,
On the Tlaximilahuaca side,
She waits for me, she longs for me,
Ixtlixochitl, my bride!"

—Life.

MUST CLOSE ON SUNDAY.

The supreme court has settled the long-disputed constitutionality of the Sunday closing law by a decision Tuesday that it is constitutional and must stand.

Under the law it is unlawful for any person to keep open any store, shop, grocery, bowling alley, billiard room or tipping house for the purpose of traffic, on Sunday, and exempted therefrom, keepers of drug stores, doctor shops, undertakers, every stable keepers, butchers and bakers.

We hope the Columbia river will be allowed to run on Sunday.

OREGON'S WATER SUPPLY.

A publication entitled "Water Resources of the State of Oregon," has just been issued by State Engineer Lewis. It is known as Bulletin No. 4, and contains a summary in tabulated form of all available information relative to the amount of water flowing in Oregon streams. The total run-off per month is given in acre feet for 192 regular stations, including the maximum, minimum and mean flow for the month in second feet. Detailed information on the availability of Oregon streams for irrigation has long been needed.

Congressman Hawley made the prohibition at Roseburg that Justice Charles E. Hughes of New York would be the next republican nominee for president. A number have advanced the idea that Judge Hughes is the only available man, but there are others. It would be a rather humiliating reflection on the republican party of this great nation were there only one available man for the first office within the gift of the people. What's the matter with Borah, Burton, Long and others?

England has captured and declared contraband about $17,000,000 worth of American meats. The packers' association will fight the case. In consequence of this seizure, the hog market has dropped several notches.

Editor Parry of the Junction City Times, is the father of a brand new boy. We extend congratulations. May the young man be husky and strong and become a great editor like his daddy.

A man who says he speaks from experience says it costs almost as much to keep a woman in clothes as it does to keep an automobile in repair.

You're a liar

South Carolina has declared for prohibition by almost a two to one vote, to take effect January 1, next. Wonder what the governor of South Carolina will say to the governor of North Carolina?

Dumb, the Austrian ambassador to the United States, has been recalled. Cause: Pernicious activity and running off at the mouth.

Flour at La Grands has dropped 30 cents. The reduction is in keeping with the slump in wheat.

Every dog has his day and every cat has his night, but man isn't satisfied unless he has both.

A fashion note says the real hoop skirt is coming back. O Jimminy!
